

The translation of the given text is: "Ahoy, well, my friend, my friend one arrow..." However, considering the context, it seems more likely that the translation is: "Ahoy, well, my friend, my friend an arrow..." This sounds similar to a traditional Romanian greeting or phrase, often used in folklore and storytelling, often used as a way to address a friend or a companion.